Appear At Jail Ready to Work for Meals While Unemployed

Rev. Carver Says Delayed Report to Be Issued Early Next Year

Sixteen men in search of employment and needing assistance until work is found for them appeared at the police station this morning and announced themselves ready to work for the city at temporary employment in order to obtain food and lodging. Their appearance came as the result of an announcement yesterday by J. Ray Ward, commissioner of public safety that begging on Ogdens streets must stop and that the city will obtain food by working at odd jobs for the city.

The men were put to work of clearing streets of snow near the city hall and at 11 o'clock their labors ceased. This entitles them to two good meals at the city jail and lodging tonight if they desire quarters within the jail walls. Fifteen of them were still on the job at 11 o'clock, one man having worked ten minutes and then was reported to have thrown his shovel down.

"I can get more for less some other place," he is reported to have said. Commissioner Ward declares the new system is useful in determining just which men need assistance and those who seek life without work. The results of the first tests have shown that nearly all the men who have appeared really will work if given the opportunity.

In connection with providing employment and food for men in Ogdens, who are without homes, Mayor Frank Francis has announced plans to call a committee to discuss the feasibility of providing a soup kitchen and a community wood-pile in order that the unfortunate may be taken care of. The installation of the kitchen, Mayor Francis said, will supply all men who desire employment with food and shelter and with its inauguration there will be no excuse for any man to beg on Ogdens streets or canvass houses for food.

MAGPIE SITE OF DAM INDORSED

William Peterson, Geologist at U. A. C. Gives His Vigorous Approval

William Peterson, geologist at the Utah Agricultural college in Logan, yesterday gave his emphatic indorsement of the site of the proposed irrigation dam site at Magpie in South Fork canyon.

This indorsement was given after the geologist had made an inspection of the formations at the site. He will present a detailed report to the irrigation district directors as soon as he can assemble his notes.

"There are no breaks or movement in the formation," he said. "The rock is of the hardest type we have out of doors. We traced the strata across from one side of the canyon to the other. The only break is that which has been made by the stream."

"A dam constructed there will have a firm foundation and the builders will have a strong type of material available."

"Criticism which might apply to the Cobble Creek site cannot and does not apply to this site at Magpie."

A. J. Peck, irrigation district engineer, said the findings of the geologist bore out statements he had made concerning the site fourteen years ago.

The inspection trip yesterday was made by Mr. Peterson, Mr. Farber, James L. Robison and D. D. McKay.

TAKE COPIES OF FINGER PRINTS

Finger prints in blood found on the door knobs of the store of Richard Erlich, merchant of Blue Creek, who was beaten to death by robbers Monday night, have been developed by Deputy Sheriff Buck Woolton of Ogdens and it is believed will play an important part in identifying the murderer or murderers.

The door knobs, containing the bloody prints were brought to Ogdens yesterday afternoon by Sheriff Job Weiling of Boxelder county who is working on the case.

Imprints in dust found upon the cans in the store, which are believed to have contained money, have also been developed and may later be used in the case. Deputy Woolton said that most of the imprints were smeared so that difficulty was encountered in obtaining a clear development, but by photographing several of the fingerprints and consolidating them, it will be possible to complete a classification.

No later developments in the case were reported to the sheriff's department today. However, clues are being followed by officers working on the case in Blue Creek which appear promising and the identification and probably the arrest of one man is expected before Saturday, the officers have reported.
